Captain's Corner

By Ted Klosowski

November 2022

It is hard to believe it is November already! This year is flying by. I hope everyone enjoys their Thanksgiving dinner and that you get to enjoy it with family and friends. Thanksgiving is more than just stuffing yourself with turkey and watching football all day. It is about giving thanks for all that we have. We have food on our tables, family to share it with. We have jobs or are retired from jobs, we have health insurance and a vehicle to drive. We live in America where we have freedom, elections and a great way of life. I thank God for all that He has blessed us with and that we live in a country where we are truly free.

I am looking forward to our Tycho Christmas party. It is good getting together and enjoying our group, enjoying good food and good friends.

We hope to see you at our next meeting on Thursday, January 5, 6:30 pm at Charlie's and on Zoom!

TODAY IS A GOOD DAY TO DINE

A Jeweled Night

By Belinda Williams

How well an intended vision affects me
As tender mercy detects misery
With sheer silence surrounding my soul
Where alien frigid waters reflect
Facets of my fantasies untold
A cosmic canopy of myriads
Of sparkling lights I behold
They decorate the void of ebony evening
They pepper the eternity of sky
They relinquish the treasure trove
Of a jeweled night
Thusly symbolic, as stellar portals
They allow my collapse
Upon another day's laurels

Dyson Sphere Redux

By Ted Klosowski

Chapter 8

The Waverunner, commanded by Captain Ted, has just entered the Dyson Sphere and immediately lost communication with the Tycho but did mark the spot it entered the sphere with luminescent paint so the Tycho knows where the entry is.

"Well, looks like we will just sit here and wait. Sherriea, keep trying to establish communication with the Waverunner." Marchelle said.

"Aye, aye captain." Sherriea replies.

Then out of nowhere three unknown vessels surround the Tycho and hails them.

"Captain, we are being hailed." Sherriea states.

"On Screen." Marchelle replies.

"I only have audio, here you go."

"Attention Starfleet vessel. We are the Hur'q. We are here to commandeer your ship for crimes against the Hur'q, prepare to be boarded."

Marchelle giving the slash throat signal to cut communications "What is going on here, where did they come from, is there any way out of this?"

"They must have come from another opening in the sphere, though none were detected." Paula assures.

"The ships are unknown to us, I can only speculate on their speed and armament." Jerry replies.

'Your time is up, we will begin boarding now!!!' The Hur'q respond.

"One moment, I was just discussing this with my crew."

"There is nothing to discuss, we will commence boarding NOW!"

"Alright, I don't see any other way out of this, engage the cloaking device."

"Slowly move us out of here 1/8 impulse."

As the Tycho seemingly disappeared, the Hur'q begin to panic, where did they go, Fire! Fire!! Fire!!!

But the Tycho was out of sight and out of range.

The adventure continues...

Tycho: UFO Encounter

By Sherriea and Belinda Williams

Chapter 4: Alta's Arrival

Captain Paula spent her downtime exploring the archives of the library computer concerning the known facts and even the conspiratorial folklore on the subject of UFOs and the probable alien life who may have operated them. She found the material interesting and even amusing. Captain Ted happened to enter the office and stood beside her desk, peering at the screen. He noticed that Paula was unaware of his presence. Ted cleared his throat rather noisily. He finally spoke, "What's new, Paula?" She replied, "Oh Captain, I'm just cruising the historical database for info on terran encounters on UFOs." Ted spoke, "Fill me in." She complied, pointing to some old photos that flashed on the screen. "Several centuries ago, people called these beings 'The Grays' and some were supposedly captured and forced to live on French and U.S military bases. But we really have little facts to go on right now. Ted turned the corners of his mouth down in an upside down smile, and then replied, "Well, it sounds like science fiction to me." She responded, "Well, there's a grain of fact in most folklore captain." Ted laughed, saying, "Touché, Captain, touché!" Suddenly the voice of the communication's officer, Sherriea interrupted their banter. "Captains Ted and Paula, Mr. Alta has arrived, docking in shuttle bay 6." Ted replied, "We're on our way. Notify shuttle bay and security to meet us there when docking procedures are completed. Come on Paula lets meet again our old friend Alta."

The turbo elevators open to the high security -off limits- area of shuttle bay 6. A pristine looking vessel was parked on a circular pad. All of its 90 foot by 25 foot body gleamed as if it were on display in a showroom. Chief Engineer Jerry and retired First Officer Eastwood appeared beside their captains, peering through the shuttle bay observation window. Jerry spoke with a bit of respect, "Wow, she looks brand new after traveling an unfathomable distance and through dimensions." Suddenly a female contralto voice announced, "The shuttle bay is pressurized and safe to enter." The party of officers stepped inside the bay. Before them stood the former Tycho senior officer, Alta. Ted greeted Alta, "So you are the good admiral's little surprise." Ted reached out to grab Alta's hand, saying, "Fantastic looking ship, can you take us for a quick ride?" Alta, seeing no humor in Ted's comment said, no. "If I took any human on this ship while it was operational, you would be crushed by the interdimensional pressures that I only can endure." Ted responded in a jovial tone, "Oh well, I guess I'll just stay put then." Alta added, "I could tell you about this ship's design, but then I would have to erase your memories." Captain Paula replied, "Well then, touché Alta, touché." Jerry whispered to Eastwood, "Did Alta appear to crack a smile?"

Late that night at the change of shift, as duty routine began, another mass hallucination engulfed the Tycho crew, except the android, Alta. Visions of giant black spiders and snakes prowling the corridors appeared, paralyzing some crew members so much, that they found it difficult to breathe. Alta perused data sheets that flashed before him on the computer screen, but suddenly, he stopped, turning his head as he appeared to discern the normally inaudible sounds of human cries. He heard people gasping for air in their quarters and in the corridors. He immediately stood walking out of his quarters into the walkways, following the sounds of anguish. Finally he approached the writhing personnel lying on the deck. He scanned them medically until he realized there was nothing he could do for them physically. Alta notified the doctor and staff on duty, but there was no reply. Everywhere he walked, there were writhing delirious staff collapsed on the decks. He made an independent decision to break their spell. He went to the bridge and approached the intraship communications unit as the communications officer lay unconscious in his chair. He programed the speakers to play classical music in an attempt to distract the subconscious and activate the REM cycle to a stage of realistic awareness. Their nightmarish dreamscapes dissolved as Alta also began singing very loudly "Nessun Dorma". On duty personnel began to page the bridge. Captain Ted and Donna Mominee, the ship's chief physician, stepped on to the bridge. Ted replied, "That will do for now, governor." Captain Paula immediately came over the ship's intercom reassuring everyone to ignore any lingering feelings of dread. Ted walked over to Alta as he tended to the drowsy communications officer. Alta spoke with concern, "You alright, captain?" Ted responded, "Thank you, Alta, you saved the day."

Chief Medical Officer Report

By Donna-Marie Mominæe

Strange "Old" Enterprise

My brother Rick has long been a classic car fan and often restores them. He travels to various car shows in a variety of locations. One that he frequents is in Hershey, PA. This year he discovered this special Enterprise made up from old used car parts. Talk about recycling. He was positive I would be entertained by it. Who would have thought!

- 1) Name: Justin Hunt KGO
- 2) Rank: Ensign
- 3) How long have you been a member of the Tycho? Since August of 2021
- 4) What is your favorite Star Trek series? All Trek is beautiful. TOS is my comfort series, TNG is thought provoking, and DS9 has the best world building.
- 5) Who is your favorite Star Trek character? 33.333% tie between Spock, Worf, and Sisko
- 6) Pets and/or favorite hobbies? Two turtles, two dogs, two cats. Hobbies include reading, writing, collecting various nerdy items, cosplay, podcasting, linguistics, and living history.
- 7) Favorite Food? Can one choose a favorite star in the sky?
- 8) Favorite place you have visited? There's a wooded area on a bend along the Rocky Ford. It is significant for many reasons and holds many memories.
- 9) What dream do you have yet to fulfill? Publishing a novel.
- 10) Favorite book or author? My favorite authors are JRR Tolkien, EA Poe, and HP Lovecraft.
- 11) Favorite all time movie? Gojira (1954)
- 12) Favorite color? Green
- 13) Favorite style of music? Classical (baroque), 50s and 60s rock, Christian heavy metal
- 14) What in the area is a hidden gem? The Wood County Historical Museum and Grounds in Bowling Green.
- 15) What else would you care to add? As a former pastor I tend to read too far into most things and attempt to glean life lessons from them. Fortunately, the philosophies embraced by Star Trek really open themselves up for deeper exploration.

U.S.S. Tycho Minutes

November 3, 2022

Presiding Officer: Ted Klosowski

Recording Officer: Marchelle Lee

Location: Charlie's on Central and Zoom

Attending: Wynn timer, Sherriea, Belinda, Diana, Jerry, Paula, Brian, Guy, Ted, Justin, Linda, Dianne, Marchelle, Lisa and Donna-marie

Ted: Vote! Members should have received a StarFleet ballot, if not, tell Ted.

Operation Surprise Attack went well, everyone had fun, and it was agreed to do another one. Wynn timer reported she handed them off at a library, and they seemed impressed with the number we made.

Tycho Christmas will be held December 4, which is a Sunday, at 2:00 PM. Please come at 1:30 PM to help set up. Marchelle will send out an email with the menu. Everyone has their potluck assignments.

We had two Facebook pages for the Tycho, we shut one down, it was inactive anyway.

We had some members raise the issue of using more photos on the Facebook page. Not everyone wants to be in public pictures. A signup sheet was sent around the table where those interested could give permission to share their picture online. Those on Zoom could send an email to Ted to give permission if interested. Justin contributed that groups he had been involved with took two sets of photos. We could use one set in the newsletter, and another set for the Facebook page. We are going to try that policy out.

Artemis launch is set for November 14.

Newsletter deadline is November 12.

December meeting will be held at the Christmas Party. There will be no Thursday meeting in December.

Diana is getting her nose bump removed December 13, which is after their trip to the Panhandle.

Guy saw Black Adam, which he felt was a good DC movie.

Lisa is busy with school and her parents' 67th wedding anniversary celebration.

Linda and Bob took Henry to Lowe's for a lesson and his last lesson is at Wildwood. He's doing well.

Donna-marie's knee gets fixed in another week. Busy with grand-kids who are mountain biking.

Dianne – solvent now and for December

Justin – been deleting Black Adam spoilers from websites.

Wynn timer – Pumpkin decorating contest at work.

Sherriea and Belinda are working on their story. Had car problems, put on new tires.

Next meeting is January 5, 2022

Charlie's @ 6:00 and Zoom @6:30

Be there or be a tribble.

A Continuing Journey

By Justin Hunt

I was born in 1983. As a result, my introduction to Star Trek came in the form of Star Trek: The Next Generation. From the age of four through eleven, it was one of the shows that was regularly on the TV. In the form of reruns, I was able to become rather familiar with much of what I was originally too young to understand or pay attention to.

Wesley Crusher, though wildly unpopular with much of the fandom, stood out as being rather special to me. I wasn't the healthiest of children. Even though I took martial arts classes and did get to play outside from time-to-time, much of my time was spent in books and watching TV and movies. This resulted in my being a child that didn't quite fit with others in my age bracket. So, for me, Wesley was a great analog into that world.

This character was often celebrated for his mental attributes and was trusted with tasks that were well above what was normal for his age. I wanted to be that character. I was blessed to have a good deal of support in my academic pursuits, and as time went along, I often found myself torn between who I originally wanted to be, the expectations of others, and where I was feeling led.

When my father passed away, the regular teen dysphoria took a hard turn toward pure depression. That state lasted through the remainder of my teens. It wasn't until I was twenty that I finally broke out of my own head and allowed myself the freedom to grow.

That's why the TNG episode, "Journey's End" (S7 Ep20), struck home. Nearly ten years after its original air date, an obscure episode with a character that many dislike, suddenly had a deeper meaning. I was in that place that Wesley was. Doing what I thought I wanted to do, living up to the expectations of others, and trying to figure out why I was so dissatisfied with it all. That one episode encompassed everything I was feeling. It even helped me be able to drop what I was doing and live in the moment for what seemed like the first time ever.

This is the power of Star Trek. Often the discussions of Star Trek's contributions stop with the more general technology, optimism for the future, and inspiration to explore the stars. These are all true and of the utmost importance. However, the personal impact that this franchise has had on its viewers should never be overlooked. Now, I find myself relating to different characters and being comforted with the familiarity of the old shows while being entertained by the new. But I believe that there will never be a time where Trek will be irrelevant in either the micro or the macro.
