June: The Return of the Mayflies

Yes, it is mayfly season again. I know I have written about these before but they are such amazing creatures. Mayflies come every May/June nowadays but that hasn't always been the case. Back when Lake Erie was dirty, they didn't come at all. You see Mayflies like clean water. So as Lake Erie started getting cleaned up from all the pollution, the mayflies returned. Mayflies live most of their life (1-2 years) at the bottom of the lake as nymphs. Once they mature and grow their wings they come to the surface where their whole purpose is to mate.

Once the female mates she will lay along the water's surface and her eggs will sink to the bottom where they will hatch and start the whole process over. Adult mayflies don't eat, they don't even have mouths they are just there to reproduce and only live for 24 – 48 hours. What a life! They hatch in swarms and are attracted to light. While they can be annoying and smelly, they are also called fish flies, they usually don't cause any harm unless they get into a power station where they can cause shortages and black outs.

The Tycho has been keeping busy with lots of activities. Last month we had our anniversary dinner, coming up we have our own Michael Stelzer giving an engineering presentation at the Neil Armstrong Museum in Wapakoneta, a visit to the Toledo Police Museum, Guy's 4th of July party and our monthly meeting, being held a week later at the Church of St. Andrew on July 11th. Hope to see you there!

Andromeda's Coming

By Belinda Williams

M31

My courage is far, from beyond

Escaping any magical wand

Any assault on my civility

Thusly, deny not this cosmic nobility

Beneath these stellar pillars, eternity stands

Approaching otherworldliness from Infinite Hands

As remote as Andromeda's swirling dreams

Yet as personal as lifelong hopes stored in reams

A beautiful danger to often appear

And then shimmer as it comes near

My idealistic inspiration coming from afar

And not just from one star

For I may wobble as a buffeted pawn from my galactic core

The silence of this enormity is but a roar

For I am that inspired being, teased by a distal phantom, still believing

My euphoria beckons a new folklore

To be welcomed and feared no more

What meaning might there exist

Compressed within a noxious nebulae mist

My attempt at a multidimensional verse

To fill the intellectual pantheon of a poetic purse

Tis the Celestial Wondering

DSS and R. Gendler

Of Andromeda's Coming

Droid Con 2024

By Brian Byczynski

I know you've heard about this particular away mission many times. We've attended all seven Droid Cons. As always, a good time catching up with old friends and meeting new builders. I'm not going to bother you with more R2 pictures. I'll try to highlight some other things such as; eating lunch at White Castle. You know me, I'll never pass on a perfectly steamed slider opportunity.

I'm in the picture this year, can anyone find me?

We arrived in Indianapolis on Friday around 2 pm and the convention was already packed with 170 builders. Several made the long trip, coming from California, New York and Ontario. Not just a bunch of R2's, we had a plethora of Mouse Droids, Scrubber Droids, and D-O's.

A huge highlight was the Probe Droid. Standing over seven feet tall with lights & sounds. All five legs were moving via linear actuators. An impressive work of art even for the most experienced prop builder.

Number one (no not Riker, the other Number 1, Dewey) was my favorite. Most don't know about the 1972 classic "Silent Running".

A great movie starring Bruce Dern, with a not so great sound track that included Joan Baez. Still a must watch for any SyFy fan. Built by fellow builder Jeff Cowman, CAD designs by Ian Hughes (you've heard that name before as I'm still working on his VINCENT). Dewey is a beautiful 3D print with some added metal parts. Seeing this in person was a complete joy. These nonverbal, waddling robots were a classic from my childhood.

Jennifer hounded me about my Pit Droid, Mouse and BD-1, they are collecting dust in the garage. At Droid Con we saw several, with awesome paint jobs and many were fully animatronic.

DJ-R3X, IG-11, R1-J5, HK-87 and Wall-E all attended the show with many of their friends.

This 4 foot Sand crawler, was operating on a tank wheel drive system, weighing in around 75 lbs.

The biggest problem with events like this, is the wow factor. So many builders are coming up with new ideas. Why didn't I do that to my droid? Can I go back and add more lights, or a few servos?

Most of the time you can't. Planning ahead can be critical to building a studio scale prop.

Presentations went all day long, most of them were live streamed. Soldering, Weathering and STEM workshops. Periscope Lifting to Powder Coating. I enjoyed the topics from Kyber Control Systems. Their board supports 40 servos and allows piggybacking commands on a single button. The latest firmware supports record and playback. It interfaces with all FrSky transmitters.

We wrapped up on Sunday with the normal charity action. Luckily there was no road construction for the return trip. Discussions were held and most likely this is the last time we will attend the Holiday Inn Indianapolis. They have accommodated us for many years. Unfortunately, we have just outgrown this venue.

Making It So

A Memoir

By Patrick Stewart

The above-titled book is an interesting autobiography of Patrick Stewart's life from his earliest memories to his most recent work. The book came out in 2023. His early life memories and experiences are from the 1940's and 50's in England, in a poor working class neighborhood. He describes how he became interested in film and theater, his home life, and other jobs he had. The Shakespearian part of his career was a slow read for me, but he does describe the plot point and character so you can follow what he's saying. A part of the book does talk about how he got into Star Trek and X-Men, which was more of interest to me. I liked the beginning third and final third of the book most of all. I can recommend this book as a good memoir if you're interested in Patrick Stewart.

Area 51: An Uncensored History of America's

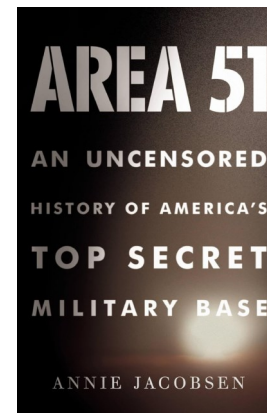

Top Secret Military Base Hardcover

by Annie Jacobsen

This book starts out with the 1938 Orson Wells War of the Worlds radio broadcast, better known as the night that panicked America. Many thought the broadcast was about a real Martian invasion and not a radio broadcast and discussed how people were so taken in by it and how the American people could be so influenced by it.

The book covers everything about Area 51 starting with its origins as an isolated, empty unused area that would be perfect to use for top secret missions. It discusses how the area was built and how part were kept secret even from other members of the military. It discusses the U2 spy planes and the Oxcart, the precursor to the SR71 Blackbird. All this is filled with interviews from the people that were there. She discusses The Atomic Energy Commission and how they did some testing there as well. It was neat seeing Oppenheimer after reading this and seeing how they did some of their testing.

The book is very informative and very well written. It ends in the 1990's with President Bill Clinton doing some inquiries into Area 51 and some of the experiments going on there over the years. While lengthy, this was definitely a worthwhile read packed with tons of information!

Note: This is the dish I made for the eclipse party. I added potatoes and didn't add enough cheese. It's from a Betty Crocker cookbook, so I think it's a good basic recipe.

Recording Officer: Marchelle Lee

Location: Charlie's on Central and Zoom

Attending: Diana, Jerry, Ted, Marchelle, Mark, Sally, Belinda, Sherriea, Wynnie, Guy, and Chrissy

D-Day discussion

Linda and Bob went to Ireland. Mark shared some neat Wand Company Star Trek toys. More are coming out soon.

June 14 is the newsletter deadline and the next meeting will be at 6:30 pm July 11 at the Church of St. Andrew United Methodist Church on Heatherdowns Boulevard.

Tuesday, June 18 2024

Michael Stelzer to present a program over Thermal Analysis: Materials dealing with heat in space. Volunteers will be in Docent Zones prior to the presentation to engage with guests as they take a self-guided tour. Presentation in the STEM Center at 1:30 PM.

Saturday, June 22, 2:30 pm at the Toledo Police Museum, 2201 Kenwood Blvd. Open Saturday 10-4. I propose we meet there at 2:30 for a short tour by the museum volunteer followed by exploring the museum.

Wednesday, August 7 is the Historic Dungeon and Jail Tour in Fremont. Tickets are limited, so buy yours in the next two weeks. We were advised to get them six weeks ahead of time. It is the 6:30 pm Flashlight Tour for $10. Make sure you select the right tour. Tickets are obtained by ordering online and the link to the webpage will be sent out shortly. Up for discussion is having dinner at The Garrison, a Fremont restaurant. Those who can, can eat beforehand, or we could go as a group after the tour. The Garrison is open until 11 PM.

Saturday, July 6, is this year's date for Guy's Fourth of July party. More details to come.

September 21 is the date for the Davis-Besse Community Day and Car Show.

FIRST OFFICER REPORT

Thank you for letting me strongarm some donations for the Feed Your Neighbors Program at Church of St. Andrew Church. I turned in $100 and several pounds of food. Thank you all!
